

Eric Murray

Climate in North Africa

The heat was unbearable. First thing in on a morning it was nice. We were in two-man bivouacs and come dinner time it was unbearable, and then when it come about six o'clock you needed your khaki back on and top coats and that, you know, all wrapped up. And then you used to get them whirlwinds. I've seen them like come, if anything loose it would just go through your bivouac and take your clothes away.